LE BEAU PRINTEMPS

There Is Now a Large Three-Story House Walking Up Pacific Avenue

at Atlantic City, and it has been a silent "movie" for the past three weeks.

Skilled workmen lifted the house from its foundation, set big wheels under it, put it on heavy planks laid on the smooth asphalt pavement, and installed a small engine to pull Mr. House along to another relay of planking—and so each day it makes progress to the new location.

Possibly the house contains the furniture also.

Why not?

If that big Atlantic Ocean Three hundred feet away can fill a bowl, bucket or barrel, it can fill New York Bay.

This is fairly good reasoning, is it not?

This big giant of a store-ship can furnish big empty houses from the kitchen to the top story, in a single day, at short notice, if absolutely necessary.

This represents its power and promptitude, though these are exceptions. John Manamater
